A precipice at the top of the eastern bluff of the Wanbera highlands. The penetration northwards of the Oromo was checked by Amhara under Nigus Tekle Haymanot of Gojjam. Cheesman in 1929 saw a large assembly of stone-covered graves on the scene of the battle. "King Takla Haimanot, having received the submission of the Galla, treated them well and built a church for them at Wanbera." [Cheesman 1936]

> On the China Road we set off towards Kon and Gashena. There was only one road, but it split into a fork with both sides seeming to disappear into tracks. The locals were very vague on which way to go.

"We had thought the distance from the bridge on the Bashilo to Gashena was 72 kilometers -- It was actually a gruelling 108 kilometers which took us 4 1/4 hours to traverse. -- We finally reached the bottom at Shedero River. -- The bridge was almost finished, but the road wasn't. In fact, the bridge ran nicely from the road on one side, but ran straight into a cliff on the other. -- I've never seen anything like it. -- We crossed the river, which was accommodatingly easy. -- We gratefully climbed up the improved road on the other side. Eventually it became really good, and we zoomed through Kon and made it to Gashena. Although it took four hours from the Bashilo bridge -- it was still at least 2 hours faster than the alternative route through Dessie and Weldiya. -- Because of the gruelling drive from Tenta, we had arrived at Gashena two hours later than expected, and tired and worn we pushed on 70 km /to Nefas Mewcha/."

The Gawa joins the Butiji which runs east to the Birbir valley. Gold has been found in heavy, angular rock-gravel that contains very little quartz. A test at the junction of the Gawa and Butiji showed 0.8 grams of gold per cubic metre. There is not sufficient volume for any industrial operation. [Mineral 1966]

Gayo (valley in Sidamo)

A wildlife watching area named from the little Gaysay river that flows into the Web river near Dinsho. Part of the area is crossed by the main road from Dodola to Dinsho. The Gaysay hills offer some superb views and many animals which can be easily observed. Fit walkers can make a steep climb to the Boditi summit, at 3520 metres, from where one overlooks the Gaysay valley and the Bale National Park. [Camerapix 1995, Aubert 1999]
